

Glossy

November 2009

Another level

Introducing this year's Glossy 8 Style Makers

Pages 5-7

Austin American-Statesman
statesman.com/glossy

Glossyvows

UT grads kept their long courtship Austin-casual until they finally tied the knot, Texas-style, page 8

GlossyPROPRIETOR

The owner of Izzy and Ash created a kids boutique that's fun, funky and age-appropriate, page 9

GlossyFOOD

Chef Shawn Cirkiel celebrates the season with a menu that revolves around the perfect pear, pages 10-11

Glossy

November 2009

Another level

Introducing this year's Glossy 8 Style Makers

Pages 5-7

Austin American-Statesman
statesman.com/glossy

Glossyvows

UT grads kept their long courtship Austin-casual until they finally tied the knot, Texas-style, page 8

GlossyPROPRIETOR

The owner of Izzy and Ash created a kids boutique that's fun, funky and age-appropriate, page 9

GlossyFOOD

Chef Shawn Cirkiel celebrates the season with a menu that revolves around the perfect pear, pages 10-11

Maria Groten

Day and night, Maria Groten, left, radiates good health and good will. The mother of three and community activist generally prefers softer looks that complement her fit figure and cascades of blond hair. Yet she can also whip up a pointed costume for one of her favorite causes, like the Center for Child Protection's Dancing with the Stars benefit.

Photographed at the Four Seasons Hotel
by the American-Statesman's Rodolfo Gonzalez

Nancy Scanlan

Nancy Scanlan, above, defines class. She tends toward muted earth tones and adds just the right embellishments from Santa Fe and other artistic communities. The photographer and philanthropist is never the flashiest dresser at parties and receptions, but she's the one whose taste pleases every eye.

Photographed at the Ransom Center
by Mark Matson for the American-Statesman

Andrea McWilliams

She navigates the corridors of power just as she shops and socializes — with intelligence and care. Andrea McWilliams looks as adept in a lobbyist's power suit as she does in the latest Oscar de la Renta creation. She's the whole Austin package from the moment she leaves the house.

Photographed at the Capitol by Mark Matson for the American-Statesman

Maria Groten

Day and night, Maria Groten, left, radiates good health and good will. The mother of three and community activist generally prefers softer looks that complement her fit figure and cascades of blond hair. Yet she can also whip up a pointed costume for one of her favorite causes, like the Center for Child Protection's Dancing with the Stars benefit.

Photographed at the Four Seasons Hotel
by the American-Statesman's Rodolfo Gonzalez

Nancy Scanlan

Nancy Scanlan, above, defines class. She tends toward muted earth tones and adds just the right embellishments from Santa Fe and other artistic communities. The photographer and philanthropist is never the flashiest dresser at parties and receptions, but she's the one whose taste pleases every eye.

Photographed at the Ransom Center
by Mark Matson for the American-Statesman

Andrea McWilliams

She navigates the corridors of power just as she shops and socializes — with intelligence and care. Andrea McWilliams looks as adept in a lobbyist's power suit as she does in the latest Oscar de la Renta creation. She's the whole Austin package from the moment she leaves the house.

Photographed at the Capitol by Mark Matson for the American-Statesman